

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF SCIENTIFIC IDEALIZATIONS

SUKANT SARAN*

The ideas of cause and chance are considered as intuitive mental responses to the external world. These two concepts are intertwined cyclically in the creation of scientific idealizations.
