

WRITING SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY IN INDIA FOR NON-SPECIALISTS : INFORMATION SOURCES FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY COMMUNICATION

SUBIR K SEN*

---

The author points out that all information are creation of human brain. The information is represented by literature of different fields of knowledge. Information sources are – primary, secondary and tertiary. A typology is presented. The author also introduces the need and purpose of different sources in providing information for S & T communication. He discusses among others language tools, background and current sources, cyber-sources, libraries, archives and museums.

---